OODLES OF SAMPLES AT BIG FOOD SHOW

Exhibits Ready for Opening at Convention Hall.

Canopied with billows of white and gold, the National Food Show at Convention Hall, which opens at 7:30 o'clock to-night, will present the most notable display of foodstuffs that the National Capital has ever seen.

All day yesterday exhibitors and decorators were busy putting the final touches to the artistic display, and if need be the show could have been opened last night. Perry P. Patrick, the manager, was jubilant last night over prospects for a great success. At an informal meeting of exhibitors assurances were given Manager Patrick of the greatest liberality in the giving of samples. Among the consignments received during the day and yesterday were 1,000 pounds of sausage, 2,000 hams and other meat products from the Cudahy Packing Company; twenty tons of mince meat and plum pudding for Atmore and Son; 25,000 sacks of salt for the Worcester Salt Company; thousands of bottles of the condiments of the H. J. Heinz Company, of Pittsburgh, and so on, through a list of candy, tea, flour, coffee, fruit, butter, and just "oodles" of other good things.

Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the Bureau of Chemistry of the Agricultural Department, will make the opening address to-night. Health Officer Woodward will also be one of the speakers.

In addition to the exhibits already announced, Manager Patrick stated yesterday that the District department of weights and measures would also have an exhibit in charge of Assistant Sealer Howe. The Bureau of Standards has contributed two large cases to the display.

Every arrangement has been made to care for the great crowds expected.

BUFFALO POLICE NAB MUTINEER

Henry Brady Is Wanted by Virginia Authorities.

Henry Brady, sought by the police of the country for more than eight months as the instigator of mutiny on the schooner Irene Ruth, off Colonial Beach Va., last January, during which the captain of the vessel, Allen Dorsey, and his mate, John Adams, were beaten to death, is thought to have been captured by the Buffalo police. Brady, who escaped from the Montrose (Va.) jail on the night of April 12, with two negroes, who also participated in the mutiny, will be brought back to Buffalo to face a charge of dual murder. The man whom the Buffalo authorities say is Brady, has been living in that city under the name of John Williams. He is twenty-five years old, and answers the description of the man wanted by the Virginia authorities. (A11.)

Brady was captured by the latter the arrangements will be made to bring the man here.

The mutiny in which Dorsey and Adams were murdered is said to have been the worst of its kind ever recorded in the annals of oyster dredging history on the lower Potomac River. The schooner was anchored across from Colonial Beach, near Wakefield. After the captain retired one of the mutineers entered his cabin and murdered him with a belaying pin. Mate Adams came to the rescue, and a free-for-all fight started.

The three negroes, who were taken into a small boat, and made for shore. A chase ensued to the shore, during which running shots were fired. The fugitives made their way through Westmoreland county, pursued by horses and dogs. They were caught, and were locked up at the Montrose jail, from which they escaped. The negroes are still at large.

FACTORY GIRL WILL LIVE.

Mattie Kibb, Who Attempted Suicide, Recovering, Physicians Say.

Fifteen-year-old Mattie Kibb, the factory girl who took high-dose mercury at the mills of the District of Columbia Paper Company, Saturday night, declaring that she was "tired of all work and no play," is expected to recover from the effects of the poison, according to physicians at Georgetown University Hospital, where she was taken immediately following her attempt at self-destruction.

The girl, who lives at 1129 New Jersey avenue southeast, swallowed the poison as she left the paper mills, shortly before midnight. She had worked up to that time and was despondent, the police say, because she was unable to go down town earlier in the night.

HOSTLERS RESCUE HORSES FROM FIRE

Three Animals Burned in Morning Blaze.

Three horses were burned to death and six others narrowly escaped a similar fate, in a fire which for a time threatened the complete destruction of the stables of Peck Adams, a contractor, in the rear of Section place northeast, early yesterday morning.

The fire was well under way before it was discovered by a stable hand. The hostler called for help, and with other employees managed to rescue six of the nine horses from the burning structure. At first the horses refused to be led from the stable and became balky because of the smoke and fire. By the time the rescuers succeeded in getting six of the animals into the alley it was too late to save the other three, the rescuing party being driven to the alley by the heat. Firemen arrived in time to save the stable and buildings adjoining from destruction. The damage to the stable and to the adjoining shed, owned by J. A. Laumay, is estimated at $25.

JONAH A "SUN MYTH."

Also Samson, Says Speaker at Secular League Meeting.

According to Prof. Eudorus C. Kenney, who delivered an address yesterday afternoon before the Washington Secular League at Pythian Temple, "Samson, Jonah and company" should really be classed as "sun myths." Prof. Kenney said:

"Jonah can no longer be looked upon as a miraculous personage, for he has too many associates. When the study of comparative mythology brings out a crowd of marine heroes, the marvelousness of any one of them fades away."

The speaker held that even if such persons as Samson and Jonah had actually existed at some time, they had been "loaded down with myth and made into unreal heroes."

The views of Prof. Kenney were endorsed by a number of other speakers in a general discussion following the address, though dissent was expressed by Rev. W. A. Cuddy and Mr. N. Z. Nelson, who upheld the stories of Samson and Jonah as commonly received by Christians.

HIS PLAN TO STOP WAR.

Prof. Holter Says Unification of Religion Is Panacea.

Prof. H. P. Holter, president of the Oriental University of this city, lectured at Theosophical Hall, 537 H street northwest, yesterday morning on "Religious aspects of the world's peace movement."

He said the hope for universal peace is running through all races of men, and after pointing out the different methods by which it is hoped to be attained, said:

"The unification of religion is the panacea."

At the evening meeting, rebirth, or "reincarnation," was the subject of a lecture by Mrs. Janet Blair McGovern, of California, at the Washington Lodge of the Theosophical Society, at the lodge room, 219 East Capitol street.

The lecturer applied to human development the established principles of evolution.

Mrs. McGovern is a college woman and a student of science.

"Among the causes of war," he said, "religion takes first rank. If all men were united by the same religion, war would cease. This does not mean that all men must become Christians in name, but they must become followers of a religion founded on the Christ love, interlinked with true science, which requires into the problems of life."

"This will make all men free. It will make all men realize that our own individual ego within our personality is eternal, subject only to the single law of growth. Such a unification of religious ideas is the only thing that will eventually bring about universal brotherhood among men and universal peace among nations and races."
